[ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCHES.]

FROM THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC. Firing Along the Front-Operations of Guerrillas-Capture of Teamsters. WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 .- [Associated Press Dispatch.]-Heavy cannonading was heard at Gainesville to-day, continuing for more than two hours, up to noon, in the direction of Bealton, which is five miles from Rappahannock that neighborhood, and may have encountered Last night, between 8 and 9 o'clock, ten or twelve teams, belonging to the reserved arillery, were captured by about 150 guerrillas, when two miles from Warrenton. On first being hailed, the guerrillas represented them-selves as attached to the 13th Pennsylvania cavalry, and soon after ordered the teams to halt. They stole the mules, but one-third of the animals were subsequently recovered.

Station. At 7 o'clock this morning the second army corps started out on a reconnoissance in

This afternoon, about i o'clock, another band of guerrillas came within halfa mile of Burke's Station, fourteen miles from Alexandria, and captured 25 or 39 mules used for hauling wood, together with the wagon master and several negroes.

They ordered the wagon master to take them where the guard were, but one of the negroes having made his escape, hurried to the guard and informed them of their danger, when they prepared to give the enemy a warm reception. The guerrillas, evidently supposing they would make an easy conquest, having been informed by the wagon-master that the guard numbered only six men, when, in fact, there were about thirty men, approached with boldness, but were suddenly driven off by a volley of musketry. These guerrillas were armed for the greater part with pistols, and had only a few carbines.

FROM CHATTANOOGA.

New York, Oct. 27.—A special telegram to the Herald, dated Nashville, to-day, has the following news from Chattanooga, of the 23d

Nothing of importance is transpiring but movements are reported as favorable The rebel General Wheeler is again about to threaten our lines of railroad. Last night a torpedo which had been placed under the track exploded, throwing the tender off the track and tearing it to pieces. No one was seriously injured. During this afternoon the same train was thrown from the track between here and Lavergne.

Two days ago three regiments were sent out on an expedition, and were eminently successful They took some prisoners and gained important military information, capturing three cars and a locomotive. One of the prisoners had evidently been engaged in throwing cars from the track. The passengers wanted to hang him on the spot. The prisoner is now in Although the road is bad, you will hear favorable news before long.

fax and Boston at 3 o'clock on Monday after-

Beresford Hope had delivered an address before the Liverpool Southern club, reiterating his views in favor of the South. Sir Randall Palmer had also made a speech, saying that England could not recognize the South until her independence was fully settled.

Mr. Beecher, in his speech, showed by favorable arguments how much England was interested in the triumph of the North. He asserted that slavery was the root and branch of the American trouble, and maintained that the North fought for the Union because it believed that the Union men would ultimately secure the emancipation of the slaves of the South. Mr. Beecher believed that under the influence of Earl Russell's speech at Blair-Gowrie, and the seizure of the suspected rams in the Mersey, the hostility of the North towards England would disappear. Mr. Beecher concluded by pointing out that in view of the threatening aspect of affairs throughout the world, kindred nations, like England and America, should not be estranged, for united they would be a match for the world.

A vote of thanks to Mr. Beecher was moved, which was carried with great cheering, but not unmixed with hisses and groans. The London Times, in an editorial on that part of Sir Randall Palmer's speech which shows that there is no doubt about the spirit and design of the laws respecting the ironclads seized in the Mersey, says: "The Ministers have not been doubting whether these steamers were designed for the same service as the Alabama, nor whether they could be lawfully dispatched, but whether they suspected destination can be conclusively proved against them. The intent of the law is, however, to make the case perfectly clear. Few men will te found to deny there is suspicion enough to justisy the resolution on the part of the Government to reserve the ease for trial. The doubts that arise are principally from the difficulty of obtaining conclusive evidence; the case admitting of infinite evasions. The Attorney-General tells us that the Americans have done as much for others as they are now expecting will be done for them; that they never showed unwillingness to act when urged; but that they found difficulties in the way of such proceedings.

The Times says, in conclusion:—If this is the state of the law, it is unsatisfactory in the extreme, and as both countries have found the utmost difficulty in bringing the law to bear. the sooner the machinery is improved the bet-Troubles had broken out in India, and there were outbreaks in New Zealand, which the British Government had sent troops to quiet. Napoleon was to receive the Mexican deputation on the 17th instant. The Russians were constructing gunboats in

The Poles had offered to form an alliance with Turkey to reconquer what has heretofore been lest by the Ottoman empire. The English Cabinet has postponed its dec-sion in regard to recognizing the Poles as beligerents. The rebel Colonel Lamar had made an address at an agricultural benefit in England in favor of the South. Important from Japan. REPULSE OF THE BRITISH FLEET.

The San Francisco Alta California has the following important news from Japan: From an officer of the Russian steam corvette Nardvick, ashore above Point Reves, We learn that the British fleet, which went to en-force payment from Prince Satsum, of the indemnity demanded for the murder of Mr. Richardson, is reported by the Japanese to have met with a defeat. According to the Japanese accounts, the fleet proceeded to the city of Kagosema, where the Prince resides. When it reached the outer harbor, a violent hurricane came up, and compelled them to lay to. On its cessation the fleet entered the inner harbor, where, after a short engagement, they sunk an armed schooner, supposed, from the subsequent action of the Japanese, to have the subsequent action of the Japanese, to have been a decoy. As the fleet proceeded, they came in range of masked heavy batteries, which immediately opened. The batteries were of rifled cannon, and opened a tremendous fire, one vessel alone receiving seventeen shots. The advance portion of the fleet were riddled, the guns of the batteries being so placed that every shot told. The Admiral of the fleet determined to make a boat attack, but did not consummate the same, owing to the disabled condition of a majority of his the disabled condition of a majority of his versels, which compelled him to tow them out of range of the batteries. The Japanese claim to have destroyed the greater portion of the fleet.

LATE SOUTHERN NEWS.

Lee's Last Failure. [From the Richmond Examiner, Oct. 22.] It is scarcely time to form a correct estimate of the late events on the Rapidan and the Rappahannock. No full account of the facts, or explanation of the causes which led to the failure, has yet been received from a Confederate source. The enemy's accounts are equally minute and exultant, and they are so far confirmed by the abbreviated and dessiccated dispatches sent under "military censorship" that we are only justified in describing the late affair as an attempt by Lee to interpose a corps of his army between a large portion of Meade's force at Culpeper, and Washington.

It he have succeeded, the result would have permanently cured the Army of the Potomac of its chronic disease, the Prurigo Ricomondien-sis, or Itch for Richmond. Unfortunately the enemy became cognizant of the plan at the mo-ment of its execution, and retreated with suf-ficient deliberation to destroy all their stores that they sid not carry on to the fortunations of Centreville. It is impossible to follow them, for the country is a desert in which our army could not live, while the enemy would be at the door of his magazines in Washington One fight—apparently between a division of the Confederate army and a larger body of the enemy—occurred during the movement, in which we lost 450 prisoners, five pieces of cannon, and were generally worsted. Why such a fight occured cannot now be said. It can scarcely have been the intention of Lee to pit one division against two army corps. At present the collision bears the appearance of an ambuscade, or of a blunder, which was not redeemed by energy or conduct.

There are generals who have the gift of inspiring their troops with their own gallantry, and there are Generals who have not that gift. It would appear that Lewisburg, Gettysburg, and Bristow Station are illustrations of this

In the meantime, the loss at that place was far more than counterbalanced by successes elsewhere. Against Meade's 450 prisoners Lee bas placed 1,200 and the campaign in Northern Virginia has closed for the season nearly at the spot where it began two years ago, with the enemy in retreat, and our own army victorious, though baffled.

The Slave Revolt in Hancock, Ga. The reported insurrection of blacks in Hancock county seems to have been a more serious affair than first supposed. From reliable information communicated to us quite a large number of negroes are implicated in the intended revolt. Their organization was complete, and officers chosen from that of major general down to corporal. The chief of the conspiracy is an artful and intelligent fellow, who was well qualified to be a leader of such a dangerous enterprise. He was the Major General of the forces, and proceeded to Atlanta on business connected plot. The plan was laid to join Rosecrans when he arrived and captured Atlanta, after first killing off the old white men, and women and children, and appropriating the young women as wives. To this they were put up by designing rascals from Lincoludom, who are now infecting the whole country. A number of the ringleaders of the plot have been arrested and lodged in the Hancock jail, and with them the Major General, who was brought in irons from Atlanta. On arriving at the jail and seeing his comrades "cribbed," he said to them scorafully, "You have played —, haven't you!" and then subsided into stubborn silence in reference to his object. Judge Thomas has ordered an extra session of the superior court for the third Monday of this month to investigate the case and properly punish these misguided and desperate malcontents, if found guilty, as they are sure to be, from the disclosures already made. Let other communities take warning .- Macon Confederate, 14th.

Arrested and Sent to Richmond. The Staunton Spectator says that on the 12th instant the Confederate pickets west of Meadow Bluff, Greenbrier county, arrested Mr. Thad-deus Jones and a son of Mr. Waldron, formerly contractor on the Covington and Ohio railroad, while attempting to "work their way" in othe lines of the enemy. Mr. Jones, b fore the war, lived in Washington City, but has been living for the past two or three years at the White Sulphur Springs, where he acted as agent, su-perintendent and salesman for Mr. William Calwell, one of the proprietors of the White Sulphur Springs. Additional Southern News.

The Richmond Daily Express, of October 24th, gives detailed particulars of Gen. Lee's movement; and says the rebel troops had all doubtless recrossed the Rappahannock. The enemy attempted no advance upon our retiring columns, if, indeed, they knew of it. Thus you see the campaign is over. Its results are briefly sumed up:—We have captured about fifteen hundred of the enemy, with some small arms, and wounded at least as many more, and tore up the Orange and Alexandria Railroad for twenty-five miles, with a loss of not over twelve hundred in killed and wounded, some few prisoners and four pieces of artillery (those lost by Hill's Corps at Bristow Station.) Whether the game was worth the candle I will not attempt to decide. Some think we have done wonders. It has only taken ten days to do all this. * * * * * * *
Stuart started on Saturday last on a raid, but came upon a column of the enemy's infantry near Drainsville, and was compelled to return without accomplishing his object. Gen. Stuart was also engaged with the enemy's cavalry in skirmishing the latter part of Monday, near Warrenton Junction, on the river, with what result I am not advised. The correspondent of the Espress, writing from the army, complains that the soldiers of Lee's army are absolutely barefooted, and asthe Government cannot furnish shoes, private munificence is appealed to; and the women are also appealed to for aid, as the soldiers badly

A letter dated Army Northern Virginia, Bristow Station, Va., Thursday, October 15, 1963,

It is certainly a little singular, and a fact calling for explanation, that a pursuing army should have its artillery captured by its retreating adversary. It must have resulted from gross mismanagement somewhere. But, as at present advised, I am not prepared to fix the blame. General Cook, who commanded the two brigades, says, as I am informed, that his men fought well, but that they were not prop-erly supported, the supports being more than a mile in rear; and further, that his men had to move upon the enemy in a line running somehed to encounter, at the same time, a superior force in front, and on his flank, or rather in his

This may or may not be the explanation; I cannot say. I made efforts to find Gen. Cook, but was unable to do so. I passed over the field to day; it is immediately at the railway station. The ground on our side, and over which we charged at the Yankees, is an open field, skirted at its further edge by pine forest. As soon as our men emerged from this forest they were exposed to a raking fire from the enemy's batteries, which were situated on a crest just below the railroad station This crest was the highest elevation in the reighborhood. The open field of which I have spoken terminates in a high bank on the upper side of the railroad, and it was behind this that the enemy were concealed, and from which they poured their murderous fire upon our men, and one that succeeded in driving them completely back. No further effort was made yesterday evening to dislodge them. This morning the Yankee bird had flown.

"PEACE MOVEMENTS" IN NORTH CAROLINA. We have some important news from North Carolina in our Newbern correspondence. It appears that a commissioner from the rebel-element has arrived there with certain propositions regarding a "great national convention" proposed to be held for the settlement of the war, but the precise plan nor the probable re-sults do not seem very clear, further than that it is based upon the assumption that a large portion of the people of the other Southern States, as well as North Carolina, are disposed States, as well as North Carolina, are disposed towards peace and reconstruction upon take terms, and that a free ballot taken upon the decisions of the proposed convention shall regulate the claims of both sections of the country, which are expected to be laid down on the principle of mutual forgiveness, etc. Meantime we await with anxiety the result of the agreat national convention" when it assembles.
